minimum rate of $1.00 per day covering all charges is made available to such persons. The municipal hospital is truly an experiment. It has been fully proved to be a community value as well as a financial security for the district. There are at present sixteen of these institutions operating in Alberta, all of which are giving satisfactory service to their districts.

START TO BE MADE ON NATURAL GAS SUPPLY RIGHT AWAY

From information which is supplied by wire, we learn that it is the intention of the Wainwright Gas Co. to commence at once on the construction work for the supply of natural gas to the citizens of Wainwright at once so that the utility may be available this fall and winter.

The supplies are now being purchased for the lines, and so as to facilitate this end of the project, it is desirable that the company have some definite means of telling just how many will be putting in the service now. A representative of the company is to be in town this week—although we have not heard yet where he may be located—and as will be seen from the advertisement of page two of this issue he will be looking up the applicants for their supplies as needed.

There can be no doubt that the utility is one which every five citizen will desire to obtain—and as the saying is: "eventually: why not now? So far as we gather, satisfactory financial arrangements have been concluded by the company, and it is the full intention of those responsible that the work will be rushed to completion.

Citizens, therefore, need feel no compunction in getting their application in as early as possible so that the general layout of the scheme, and the consummation of the plans as formulated can be brought to a happy conclusion.

The gas is here—we all know that we only remain for the company to bring it to the stage of availability to our homes and the housewife will then have the pleasure of having the privileges and benefits accruing from a modern convenience as NATURAL GAS IN THE HOME.

After an extended holiday at Alberta Beach and Edmonton Mrs. J. Gerow and little son returned home on Monday.

Having closed their cottage at Pigeon Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and family have now returned to town.

SASU PITTS EXCELLENT IN "PRETTY LADIES"

Never before in the cinema life of Sasu Pitts has that talented actress been given the opportunity offered by her role in Monte Velt's "Pretty Ladies," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, being shown at the Theatre tonight and Thursday. That Miss Pitts took advantage of this exceptional opportunity will be taken for granted by those who have followed her work during the last several years.

She is supported by a huge all-star cast of screen and stage artists including Tom Moyer, Lilian Tashman and Ann Pennington. The picture is based on a story by Adela Rogers St. Johns.

Dr. Torgy, chairman of the taxation committee appointed by the government of Alberta to study taxation and other financial problems, announces that the work is progressing most satisfactorily, and that considerable information has been gathered from all parts of Canada, the United States and other dominions. Sitings have been held during the past week at which representatives of urban and rural municipalities have been heard in respect to their various taxation problems. The chairman and secretary have spent considerable time assembling and compiling the mass of documents which have come to hand, and in the preparation of comparative tables of revenues and expenditures.

DAIRY COUNCIL FOR PROVINCE

Formation of a permanent advisory dairy council for the province was announced by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of agriculture. The new organization will be representative of all the varied interests of the dairy industry. The object of the minister in the formation of such a council is to get all the interests together in round-table conference with the minister to discuss problems common to the dairy industry.

This industry is considered to be one of the most important branches of agriculture, and the minister feels that by securing the advice and co-operation of the representative men in the industry, including producers, manufacturers and distributors, that the best interests of the entire industry will be served.

Under a scheme of municipalization, Mr. Gorman pointed out, there would be centralized collection of school taxes, and he thought that the tax collecting authority would be greatly preferable to the present method. A general levy would then be made for educational purposes.

Dr. H. M. Torgy, chairman of the committee, was of the opinion that the system in vogue in Edmonton is a good one and that if the school boards were thus to relinquish their tax collecting powers they must have assurance that their full regulations will be paid.

Commissioner A. T. Stephenson, of Red Deer, said it is absurd that the municipality should make an assessment and then the school board another.

The question of the cost of educating non-resident pupils, in the high schools also came up during the hearing and Mr. Gorman gave it as his opinion that non-resident pupils are even profitable, but he believed that the fees should be larger, perhaps twice their present figure. In the small towns, which he admitted are not as favorably circumstanced for giving such service, there is nothing in the school act, he said, to compel the school boards to engage more teachers than necessary for their own resident pupils.

CHIEF INSPECTOR URGES ONE TAX COLLECTING INCLUDING SCHOOL

Municipalized school districts instead of the present system of self-running school boards, were given favorable consideration at a hearing before the advisory committee on taxation in Edmonton when the relation between taxation and education was up for airing. The suggestion developed but of evidence submitted by George W. Gorman, chief inspector of schools for the province.

Under a scheme of municipalization, Mr. Gorman pointed out, there would be centralized collection of school taxes, and he thought that the tax collecting authority would be greatly preferable to the present method. A general levy would then be made for educational purposes.

ANOTHER WELL WILL BE IN BY END OF WEEK

The Western Consolidated No. 2 well, which is situated on S.E. 11 in 30 45-6, and which was cemented in last week end, is now being cored and the possibility is that this hole will give even a better result than any brought up yet. It is fully expected that indications shown of gas will be enough pressure to bring the crude to the surface nicely, and what oil has been brought up show it to be even lighter in gravity with possibly a 22 Beams showing.

President Palmer and Mr. R. Spencer, a director of the company have been in the field for the past few days and they are watching very carefully the prospects of the well being brought in as a "real find".

All of the oil men of the field who have seen the cores are more than satisfied that the Western Consol have "struck it rich" in this hole and no doubt the results will be pleasing to the shareholders of the company.

AT THE EMERALD WELL From latest reports at the Emerald well, work has again commenced at this hole, and plans are being made to begin a deep test there. Last week the hole stood with about 150 feet of oil but it is considered that by going deeper much better results will be obtained.

During the next week or ten days work is expected to start at the National Explorations holdings on 30-45-6 where Driller Dellinger will be the man at the helm.

Work goes steadily along at the Fabian Pete hole near the Maple Leaf producer, and Driller Carrington says that they are nearing the 1,000 mark. Every indication is shown that this well will be another producer judging by the comparisons with logs of the other wells, which tally up very close by with the new hole.

Farmers: the Atlas Lumber Co. have an enormous stock of dry lumber for your granaries, barns or other buildings; and the prices are right.

Mrs. W. Washburn, who returned last week from a visit to her mother in Ontario is again occupying her cottage at the lake.

DON'T SNUB ANY FUNNY OIL - IT MAY BE ICHTHYOL

Anytime any Wainwright operator gets a showing of funny looking oil that is not as commercial as oil wells get he had best have it analyzed.

It may contain ichthyol. Ichthyol sells for several dollars a gallon and has been produced nowhere in quantity other than in Austria. It has wonderful healing qualities and is very scarce.

An oil containing 25 per cent ichthyol has been discovered in McMullen county, Texas. A well making a barrel a day of this oil is said to be as good as a well making 40 barrels of ordinary oil. If it exists in Texas, it may be found in other oil fields, including Wainwright.

PEOPLE OF ALBERTA SUBSCRIBE $6,500.00 TO NAVY LEAGUE

The Rev. Fred Cooke who has been in Wainwright, taking up subscriptions to the Sailor Magazine and donations to the Navy League wishes to thank the citizens, as they have subscribed about $11.00 to the Navy League. MAY SETTLE G.T.P. DEBENTURE TANGLE

LONDON.—The Daily Graphic understands that the recent rise in Grand Trunk Pacific debentures was due to the receipt of a cable from Canada stating that representatives were being sent to Great Britain to arrange an amicable settlement. The change of attitude of the paper states, was due to the intervention of Reginald McKenna, chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, and former chancellor of the exchequer, who was invited by important Canadian interests to express an opinion on the situation.

The Golden Cocoon, with Helen Chadwick is a pictorialization of this novel by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
Copyright, 1926, by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

Molly had small tolerance for the hawkish affectation of blotting on a man's sine because he was dead, of pretending to be sorry when was not sorry. Her father had been a lazy, self-indulgent visionary, and she despised him from the bottom of her heart. She despised him just as intensely now as she had two days ago or two years ago. She sat with dry eyes and tightly compressed lips while Elder Day read without comment the brief ceremony. It was his comfortable rule where nothing good could be said to the deceased, to refrain from saying anything at all.

She despised her father still, and yet there was this thing—death. The new dignity and aloofness it imparted, the undeserved touch of sublimity to the meanest, the most ignominious.

"In my father's house are many mansions... I go to prepare a place for you... that where I am there they may be also..."

The familiar words fell with startling strangeness upon the hushed silence. Perhaps that was what did it, breathed majesty and splendor upon this most repulsive of human functions—the naked beauty of the words the noble onward speed of the rhythm.

"Let not your heart be troubled; neither let it be afraid..."

There were words stretched forth like a hand of healing—an antidote for the wretchedness of living. Marvellous that mere combinations of syllables could speak straight to the soul like that, could soothe and comfort and make at peace.

"I am the resurrection and the life. Elder Day drowned in his mountainous slumbers, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

Molly realized of a sudden that tears were hot on her cheeks, and she dashed them away. They were not for her father, she clung stubbornly to that. They were a tribute to ultimate perfection in the symbol of language, to the mystic incandescent point where words meet—and become music.

CHAPTER VII
"Molly, has Cynthia told you—about Jo?"

She turned from the sewing machine to find the brown eyes fixed a little doubtfully on her. She glanced at Cynthia, grown in two years amazingly pretty and, to her wistful half-envy, exquisitely plump and saw that she was blushing and looking very self-conscious. "What about Jo?" she asked, still unsuspecting.

The girl threw up her pretty blond head. "Jo and me are going to get married, come October," she said. Words and gesture were not without a tinge of defiance; echo, no doubt, of honest Jo's refusal the evening before to say that he had never really loved Molly at all.

Molly stared, gasped, then jumped up with a pair of unfinished little trousers dangling from one arm and kissed Cynthia with all her heart. "Oh I am glad!" she said. "Jo's a fine dependable boy, and we need him in the family. He'll be such a help to mother. How stupid I was not to guess!" Cynthia kissed her back, looking shamefaced and relieved, and Molly understood what the doubt in her mother's eyes had meant. She smiled to herself and touched worshipfully for the hundredth time a crisp new letter inside her blouse. It had come that morning. It was kind, sympathetic, paternal, humorous, big-brotherly all in one; so much like the writer he might almost have spoken to her from—three hundred miles away. There had been others, too—each a friendly little plumb line sounding her dark ocean depths.

"Cynthia wants to show you her things," Mrs. Shannon added. She too was plainly relieved. She was quite shrewd enough to know that while a woman may not want a man herself, she can still be very much averse to any one else's having him.

Molly looked surprised as Cynthia went quickly to the old tin trunk by her mother's bed. She was more surprised when she saw the pile of really beautiful garments lifted adoringly from thick swathings of tissue paper. Soft raincoats and Valenciennes, dainty ribbons and organza, a silk petticoat—bag of all a shimmering white crepe-de-chine wedding dress, with silk stockings and gloves and white kid pumps to match.

"But—Molly glanced, mystified, from the fire to out of place in the bare ugly little room, to her mother. I don't understand. Surely Aunt Lena when Mrs. Shannon seemed to hesitate, Cynthia spoke up, proudly, "Jo gave me the money."

"He wanted she should have pretty clothes and—she wanted them so—it didn't hardly seem right to refuse," her mother amended hurriedly, smoothing and stowing things over, as usual.

For some moments Molly said nothing at all, but she turned very white. The shimmering silk dress slipped unnoticed from her lap and Cynthia picked it up and brushed an imaginary smudge resentfully off it. Then Molly got to her feet; her voice shook with passion. "Mother," she said, how could you—let her?

She broke off. Another of the old blasting tornadoes had her in its grip. She felt queer and dizzy. Remembering though, her last humiliation and shape, she fought grimly for self-control. Even at that the next words barbed with poison. "We've always been poor," she went on, when she could trust herself to speak, but at least we haven't been downright—common before. We've never taken anything we didn't have to have. Why it's no better than the way the negroes do—letting their men buy the wedding clothes for them."

Cynthia had risen, too, and her face was as white as Molly's. The wedding gown lay on the table between them, stupid and inarticulate, like a peace offering spurned. "I'll thank you not to compare Jo and me to negroes," she said. Her voice, despite the tremble, was hard and resentful. In it rankled the jealousy and bitterness of years.

She had loved Jo all her life—and hated Molly for making him appear stupid and ridiculous. Besides, you didn't have to have your precious old university did you? You went off and left us to shift the best we could while you had it fine and easy. And now you come back thinking you're too good to wipe your feet on the rest of us talking about negroes."

"Girls—girls!" Mrs. Shannon implored, terrified at the hornet's nest she had pulled down unwittingly about her ears.

But Molly's anger had flared down before this stunning revelation of what was in her sister's heart. Cynthia had been always the gentlest and most docile of creatures, the only one of the brood, indeed, who had never openly resented the too often dominating tactics of the self-appointed mentor.

"I'm sorry," Molly said, tonelessly, as she turned again to the machine. "I shouldn't have spoken as I did of course. I had no idea you felt like that."

That night, before she went to bed, Molly wrote in an old note book under a heading already commented on at considerable length:

Poverty blunts all the delicacy, destroys all the beauty of human relations. Being poor together comes to the same thing as being savages together. It makes people snarl and snap and fly at one another's throats. It leaves no distances, no reserves, no nuances. A reasonable amount of wealth serves as a pad, a silence wall between those so unfortunate as to be thrust willy-nilly into families. It saves them the disaster of finding one another out.

Why do people in families hate one another. The girls who room together at the dormitory almost always hate one another too. It is for the same reason or is there something deeper and more sinister about families? I hate poverty. I hate myself for being poor. I will not always be poor.

CHAPTER VIII

Molly was to stay on at Mrs. Park's for the coming season. She could earn part of her board and thus have money to send home. There were other reasons, too, of course—nameless, yet breathtaking reasons... She came back a day earlier than she intended, noting Aunt Lena's convenience about taking her to the train. The onslaught of students would not begin until tomorrow and the campus was almost as deserted as when she left it three

THE NEED OF LOCAL SELF RESPECT

A certain well known business man who was recently in Russia said that the Russian revolution took place so easily because the power of Russia was concentrated in two big cities and that when these two cities were captured, the revolutionists had control of the whole Nation. We believe he might have gone further and said that had Russia's power and privilege been well distributed, the revolution would not have been necessary.

How many of us who are living in the urban districts in Western Canada and who continue the practice of sending money away for our purchases realize that we are slowly but surely contributing our share towards dismantling the town which we should be building up and establishing as a sound practical and economical purchasing centre. If we are going to continue to patronize the big cities our case is eventually going to develop to be the same as Russia's and instead of our playing the part that we should in building up a well distributed and sound Canada by first of all building up our own local town on a sound basis, we are going to contribute towards the establishment of only certain limited large centres which, to say the least, is a most dangerous proposition.

We wonder if our community dwellers realize that every dollar which is spent in their town comes back to the spender with accrued interest. We wonder if they realize that there is no wiser use of money than by patronizing your local merchants who are helping to build up your town's business section. This eventually means larger stores, bigger assortment of stock and better service to the communities. The outsider usually judges a town by the size and appearance of its business districts, but the merchants' ability to make a good showing in this respect depends entirely upon the patronage which they receive. Bigger stores pay bigger taxes and the public improvements and other benefits that come from higher revenues are enjoyed by all.

It seems to us that the need of local self respect and loyalty can be summed up in that book entitled, 'A Code for the Smaller Community', which in its closing chapters reads as follows: 'I am a small community but I do not need to be isolated nor provincial. The goods of the world are mine, but the world expects me to provide as well as take. I will be worthy of the whole-hearted devotion of my community dwellers because I offer to them a chance to secure the abiding satisfactions of life. If they support me, provided I am worthy of that support so will I support them and by so doing we will co-operate to make our town and district one of outstanding attention.'

TERMINATION NOTICE RAILWAY AGREEMENT

EDMONTON, Formal notices have been served on the Canadian Pacific Railway through the attorney-general's department terminating the agreement in respect to the E. D. and B. C. and Central Canada railways. These notices, which follow up the preliminary advice given recently by Premier Brownlee take effect as from August 10. Under the terms of the original agreement three months' warning is called for and the arrangement between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the provincial government by which the former operates the northern railways, will therefore expire November 10 next.

OCTOBER SESSION SHOULD BE BRIEF IN OTTAWA HOUSE

OTTAWA, Although it is pretty well understood now that no additions to the cabinet will be made before the elections, two Conservative candidates now seeking election in Quebec are persistently mentioned here as cabinet possibilities. One is J. C. Bumbury, running in the Laurier-Outremont division of Montreal, and the other, Pierre Audet, who is opposing George Parent, ex-M. P. in Quebec West. The present ministers from Quebec are Sir George Perley, secretary of state, and Hon. E. L. Patenaude, minister of justice.

The newly-elected parliament is expected to meet in October as both parties are committed to the idea of a fall session. Public outlays are being financed by governor general's warrants but these are designed to cover only routine expenditures and emergencies. Parliament itself will have to vote the balance of supply en bloc and any fall session would be called exclusively for that purpose. There would be no other legislation.

But experience, however, as in 1909 when the house was called for that one purpose and also in the year that the treaty was summoned to ratify the peace treaty, shows that once here the men

bers proceed to ventilate their views on a variety of subjects. A session immediately following an election would afford a peculiar temptation to hash over the campaign issues.
 The regular session will likely be in the late winter.

U.F.A. SLATE NOW ALMOST COMPLETE

With the exception of West Edmonton and Lethbridge, all the U.F.A. candidates in the forthcoming federal election have now been nominated. These are: E. J. Garland, Bow River; Mike Lukovitch, Vegreville; Robert Gardiner, Acadia; D. F. Kellner, Athabasca; H. E. Spencer, Battle River; W. T. Lucas, Camrose; G. G. Coote, Assiniboia; Carl G. Macdonald, Medicine Hat; D. M. Kennedy, Peace River; A. Seakman, Red Deer, and William Irvine, Wetaskiwin. No candidate will be placed in the running in East Edmonton and East West Calgary. The date of the West Edmonton convention has not yet been set, but the Lethbridge convention will be held on Friday night, August 21, it is stated. It will hold a convention on August 21, but no candidate will be nominated.

CENSUS WILL HAVE DEFINITE BEARING

Increases or decreases of population in Alberta cities, as recorded by the federal census, will certainly change the number of beer hall licenses if the changes are enough to alter the quota allowed under the schedule contained in the Alberta Liquor Control Act, said the secretary of the Liquor Control Board.

Asked as to whether such changes would go into effect this year, the reply was that the receipt of official figures from Ottawa would be awaited by the board before a decision on this point would be reached.

THE WHEAT POOL AND TRADING IN FUTURES

(Quoted from the Chicago Price Current, Grain Reporter, issue of August 16, 1926)

The feature of the last day of the month's trading was the heavy delivery of wheat to the trade by the wheat pool. It is estimated that at least 5,000,000 bushels of the total deliveries for the day were from the pool. The pool all the week has been providing for the market and checked any advances by throwing in the stuff in chunks.

This is perfectly legitimate business. The pool is a member of the exchange and entitled to the facilities provided for it as a member. Herein operations in futures are on a very large scale.

But the promoters and propagandists responsible for the organization announced that one of the main objects of the pool was to break up the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. It was also frequently preached by the farmers' friends that short selling was a crime, that it was a member here being unnecessary as far as the pool was concerned, that it was in fact dangerous to the farmer and enlightening method of marketing. This bundle was swallowed by a lot of farmers, but now all from now on the highly paid pool propagandists will find their ingenuity taxed to explain. At that, you can't fool all of the people all of the time.

The Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd. (The Wheat Pool) is in the limelight these days. The public and the pool members have been informed that officials of the company suffered from writer's cramp from signing checks, and how millions of dollars have been distributed among the members of the pool by the interim payment of July 26.

So far members have received $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat. In a statement issued by pool officials they are led to hope that they may get a little more. The president of the Manitoba pool offers a word of comfort—the pool paid $1.60 all told last year. He did not depress his clients by telling them that on a whole lot of grades and mixtures there was nothing more coming. However, they know it now that they have their checks.

On the trading floor of the Exchange the feature of the past week has been the heavy and persistent selling of futures by "A certain big interest." Brokers do not divulge the names of their customers, but pit traders know where this selling is coming from. This short selling is on the face of it by parties who have the wheat to deliver and mean to deliver it.

As it is, $1.40 a bushel looks small compared to $1.52½, the average price paid by the trade. It would look smaller should the average price by the end of the crop year be $1.60 or over.

The general conclusion is that the big interest is more interested in keeping prices down than in any other policy for the present.

GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER OWNERSHIP E. D. AND B. C.

Full ownership in the Edmonton-Dunvegan and Central Canada railways now rests with the Alberta government, which will proceed to deal with other interests for their future operation or, as an alternative will operate them as a public enterprise.

The ownership rights have been secured, in consideration of $1,275,000, which has been paid over to the Royal Bank in final settlement of its claim of $2,400,000 and accrued interest. Complete control of both railway lines thus passes to the province.

A further step in clearing up the northern railway situation has been taken, it is announced by the government, by giving notice to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company of the government's intention to terminate the existing agreement under which the Canadian Pacific is operating the freight and passenger services on both lines.

This has been done in a letter from Premier Brownlee to President Best of the Canadian Pacific, which was the subject of discussion between the premier and D. C. Coleman vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, a few days ago.

Premier Brownlee has also declined the last offer of the Canadian Pacific Railway which proposed a renewal of the agreement on somewhat different terms. No new offer has yet been received, and it is not known at the government office whether any further offer will come from Canadian Pacific Railway sources or not.

By the settlement with the Royal Bank, the province secures from the latter a transfer of the debentures issued by the E.D. and B.C. Railway to J. D. McArthur, who subsequently assigned to the Union Bank, and then to the Royal Bank. The trust deed mortgage securing these debentures is also transferred to the province along with the capital stock issued by the two railways.

The transfer of the capital stock shares as par value, places the province in the position of having complete ownership and control of the properties so that it can now deal with whom it may desire, without the necessity of conferring with and securing the consent of other parties as in the past.

All the certificates of title to right-of-way, townsite and terminal properties which the bank had held as collateral security have also been transferred to the province.

GREENFIELD TO EXTEND ALBERTA GOVERNMENT'S IMMIGRATION PLANS

Hon. Herbert Greenfield, ex-premier of Alberta, has been appointed by the provincial government to take charge of a survey of the province for the purpose of determining areas suitable for land settlement especially along community lines. He will be in this work at once, and on his completion he will go to England to work in conjunction with the various immigration organizations operating there. This announcement was made by Premier Brownlee before leaving the city for his holidays and is the outcome of a decision by the government to put on an active immigration program. Mr. Brownlee said that the government will take advantage of the better conditions now prevailing to see what can be done in co-ordinating the several immigration activities in Alberta, and the first move in that direction will be to make a thorough land survey of the province, with suitability for immigrant settlement primarily in view.

It is not the purpose of the government, said the premier, to duplicate any existing machinery or attempt to take over any work that properly should remain with the dominion. An effort will be made to co-operate with the dominion government and also to get in touch with the railway companies and the British Empire Settlement Board. Through the latter we hope to encourage suitable immigration.

Much valuable work has already been done by private enterprise in certain sections of the province, Mr. Brownlee continued, "and such undertakings as the Clan Donald settlements will furnish information ready to hand."

Asked if the appointment of Mr. Greenfield may be taken to mean the opening of an Alberta agency in England, Premier Brownlee replied: "Not at present. Much will depend upon the results obtained and also upon the likelihood of securing the natural resources at an early date. The question will, however, be considered during the year."

In asking Mr. Greenfield to undertake this work the government is of the opinion, as indicated by the premier, that his early life in England and his intimate knowledge of Alberta life and conditions will make his work in the mother country, especially in the rural parts, highly effective and that he will be able to stimulate a movement of desirable land settlers to this part of the empire.

CANADIAN CO-OPERATIVE LEAGUE MEETS

The congress of the Canadian Co-operative league, with representatives from all parts of Canada, was held at the parliament buildings, Edmonton, during the past week. Co-operative merchandising in all its phases was discussed at the convention. The progress of the co-operative store in Canada was indicated by one report which showed that in 1924 fourteen societies had aggregate sales of $2,675,000. One side visitors at the congress included Messrs. Chas. T. Darch, John Penny, J.G. Alexander, of the Co-operative wholesale society of England, and J. Walker of Illinois who added considerably to the debates held during the session of the congress.
